From the New York Herald. The New Pianoforte of the Wallace

Company. Perfection is a quality which has never been claimed for the planoforte. The most successful efforts of the most skillful makers have still left something to be done to bring the Instrument to the highest point which some daring minds believed that it could reach. Next to the organs of the human voice, the violin, we believe has been esteemed the most perfect musical instrument. To assimilate the pianoforte as much as possible to the violin in construction, is then evidently something worthy of the utmost efforts of scientific labor to accomplish. This desideratum seems now to have been achieved by the inventor of the new piano patented and just offered for sale by the Wallace Pianolorte Company. Mr. W. Vincent Wallace, the eminent composer and artist, is the president of the company, and the appearance of his name on each instrument is a safe guarantee that the invention has some claims on the good opinion of the musical public. A few evenings ago Mr. Thalberg examined and played on the instruments now ready at the company's room, 467 Broome street, and as we are informed, pronounced an unqualified opinion that the principles of their construction were admirable, ensuring a grand noble tone, and that he never heard their volume and power excelled in depth, purity and sympathetic sweetness .-Equally flattering opinions, we learn, were freely expressed by Gottschalk, Strakosch, Mason, Maretzek and other well known artists.

The difference between the construction of the Wallace instrument, invented by Mr. Spencer B. Driggs, and the old system is very simple, though most important and complete. Pianos, as originally constructed, it is known, were encased in a frame of great thickness, which was deemed necessary to bear the strain of the strings. In the new instrument the case is not more than half an inch thick, adding considerably to facilities for transportation as well as the sonorous tone of the instrument. Inside the case is an iron frame above and below, bolted together, sustaining the whole strain of the strings, and leaving no strain whatever on the wooden case. In fact, the instrumental part of the plano is entirely independent of the case, and is of course not subject to the variations from weather, unsessoned wood, and other causes of the old instruments, and as a sequence remains in tune much longer. But the most original feature after all in Mr. Drigg's invention is the construction of the sounding boards, of which there are two. The upper is constructed altogether differently from the old method, which is to glue the sounding board to the case, and make it stiff and resonant by means of tranverse ribs. In the new plan the sounding board is not glued to the case, but is fixed tightiy into a thin iron frame purposely made too small for It thus receives an arched or convex form, like the upper part of a violin. By a most ingenious contrivance the bottom of the piano is converted into a second sounding board by dispensing altogether with the heavy planking which forms the bottom in the old instrument, and substituting a thin layer or veneer of wood like the upper sounding board, pressed like it into an iron frame, when it assumes a concave shape. The effect of this will be at once perceived. The piano becomes a huge violin, as sensitive to vibration, as sonorous and as capable of producing the delicate sympathetic sweetness of that instrument. The sounding boards are connected by three sound posts, by which the vibrations of one are communicated simultaneously to the other, producing an effect that it is impossible to describe

Having said this much of the principles on which the Wallace piano forte is constructed, and its variation from all other pianos, let us say something of the effects it is capable of producing. Our reporter having been favored with a minute description by the inventor and Mr. Wallace, and being permitted to hear Mr. Harry Sanderson, the distinguished young planist, perform on one of the square pianos, is enabled to do so. The most striking advantages which seem to be gained by the new method are a greater richness and purity of tone, and an immense increase of power. It is hardly excelled in the latter quality by a full orchestra, or a military band, while the clearness and precision of the treble notes are wonderful. The interior of the instrument beng unincumbered with a single block, (except the rest plank), many of which are necessary in the old method, there is nothing to interfere with the vibration, or take from the richness of the tone. Altogether the effect produced is superb, exceeding any thing before secured by the piano forte.

At present the company have not completed any but square pianos. In about ten days, however, a number of grands, now in process of manufacture, will be completed. What the effect of the grand piane, constructed on this plan, will be, is something that it is almost impossible to predict. One of those now in hand, we learn, has been specially ordered by Gottschalk, who pronounces the patented improvements a wonderful triumph. Mr. Wallace informs us that the price of the new instruments will not exceed that of the ordinary piano.

Statistics of Living Authors.

Leigh Hunt, is not, as is often thought, the oldest author living. Henry Hallam is six years, Walter Savage Landor is nine years, Thomas Dick is twelve years, and John Wilson Croker is fourteen years, older than he. Of younger authors who were born in the last century, twenty-six or twenty-seven are still living. Among them are Cyrus Redding, born in 1785; Croly, born in 1786; C. W. Dilke and J. P. Collier, both born in 1786; Charles Knight, born in 1790; Dean Millman, born in 1790; Alison, born in 1792; John Clare, born in 1793; Grote, born in 1794; Carlyle, born in 1795; Albany Fonblaque, born in 1797; Rev. A. Dyee, and Carleton, the novelist, both born in 1798; and George L. Craik, born in 1799. The birth years of a few younger living literary celebrities are as follows; William Chambers, Samuel Carter Hall, G. P. R. James, Samuel Lover and Thomas Babington Macaulay were all born in the year 1800; Thomas Aird, Robert Chambers and Sergeant Kinglake, in 1802; T. K. Harvey, in 1803; Disraeli, Sir E B. Lytton and Harrison Ainsworth, in 1805; Samuel Warren, in 1807; Charles Lever, In 1808; Mary Cowden Clarke, Thomas Miller, and Richard Monkton Miles, in 1809; P. H. DIABBHODA.-It may be well for persons travelling during the summer to know, that in case a physician is not as hand, a safe remedy, of considerable efficacy, is found in stirring a little wheat flour in a glass of cold water until it is of the consistency of thick cream, drink it down, and repeat it several times in the course of the day, if needed. Meanwhile, est nothing, drink nothing, and lie down, if practicable. The flour may act mechanically, not medicinally, by plugging up the relaxed mouths through which the watery particles are poured into the intestinal canal. Here, diarrhoas are often the result of the greater coolness of morning and evening over mid-day, and the injurious effects of bad air on an empty stomach; hence, one of the most important rules for travelers, in all seasons, climes, and countries, is never fail to breakfast before you ride,-Hall's Journal.

NASHVILLE:

SATURDAY, AUGUST 15, 1857.

The Charleston Courier calls our attention to a statement made by us, a few days ago, that the movement for the purchase of the Mount Vernon Estate, by the "La-dies' Mount Vernon Association of the Union" originated with the ladies of Virginia. In that statement, we did not intend to convey the idea that the fair daughters of Virginia were alone entitled to the credit of perfecting the organization. The reference was as to the locality in which the idea of forming such an association was first suggested. If we are not mistaken, the "Southern Matron," who has done more than any other person towards extending and perfecting the organization, and of which she is the head and brilliant ornament, is a South Carolinian. We are happy to know that a work so consonant with the finer touches of woman's character, and showing such reverence and devotion towards the highest virtues of human nature, is not confined to the ladies of any particular State, but that the generous and noble sentiment which prompted the first step towards it, meets a quick and enthusiastic response from all the cultivated daughters of America.

We avail ourselves of this occasion, to again remind our fair readers of Nashville, and of the whole State, that they have an opportunity of enrolling themselves among the number of noble and patriotic ladies who are lending their exertions to the purchase of the Home and Grave of WASHING-B. Fogg, of this city.

Rollins, the opposition candidate for Governor of Missouri, is denounced by sham democratic presses in Tennessee as an rect; and, if correct, will account for the large democratic vote he received. Buchanan carried the State by upwards of nine thousand majority, and Rollins has carried it, according to late advices, by about fifteen hundred. Now, where did Rollins get votes from to overcome Mr. Buchanan's majority? Where, but from the sham democracy? And what but his alleged abo- gretted. We are informed that Messrs. The Atlantic Telegraph.

One matter of great interest, at present, in England, is connected with the approaching attempt to I y a submarine cable across the Atlantic. The cable has all been stowed on shipboard, and the conclusion of that arduors labor was celebrated with high festivities and rejoicings. The London Times

At present she has anything but a signtly aspect, the great dead weight of the c ble and the rather penderous appliances for p-ying it out having altered her trim appearance for the worse. To approach her from the yard is neither an easy nor a cleanly task, and the visitor, however autions, will ascertain, beyond a doubt, that the old maxim that one cannot touch pitch and not be efiled, is strictly true with regard to tar. The wire, as we have already explained in previous notices, has been wound over the floating stages from the wharf into the hold of the vessel. The machine by which this was done registered | Farrell, Mrs Margaret each fathom, furlong and mile as it passed, while | Pudge, Mrs L C the usual apparatus was employed to test the integrity of the conducting wire. This test however, would only show where the conductor was severed, and not until the time for its committall to the deep arrives will it be seen whether it has been so attenuated in certain portions as to part during the rocess of paying out. From the small machine on leck it was wound at once into the hold, where it ies in one stup adous solid coil, forty-five feet in iameter, and nearly fourteen feet high. It isbeau- Hyde, Mrs M J tifully arranged here, laid coil over coil with the most perfect accuracy, and every precaution taken to guard against a "kink" or fault occurring in the paying out. It being ranged in one mass will much acilitate the operation of submerging. On board the Niagara, we believe, it is stowed away in three coils, a decidedly objectionable arrangement, but one which it was impossible to avoid."

mportant statements are made which throw a shade of doubt upon the undertaking:

"While looking at the ponderous mass on board the Agamemnon, one cannot fail to be struck by the heat of the place in which it it stowed away, a ceat which might excite well founded fears as to its influence on the gutta percha. If we are not misinformed, the heat of the sun destroyed many miles of the wire by melting out the gutta perche while the TON, by communicating with Mrs. FRANCIS cable was lying in Glasse & Elliott's yard. Proper precautions should be taken to avert risk from this

The friction drums should therefore have been of the slightest kind consistent with preventing a 'rush,' and in fact only sufficient to ease it over gently. Yet it is no exaggeration to say that the machinery to be used is the very reverse of all this, and its massive aspect strikes dismay into every neers of the day consider it too heavy, and have expressed most unfavorable opinions concerning it and its probable effects upon the cable; and even those intimately connected with the plan and its details do not disguise their regret that such a ma chinery should be resorted to.

Should the squadron meet with very severe weather, and it not be considered prudent to retain the cable end on board at all, the wire rope will be attached as before, and the end of that secured again to an immense buoy. The whole can then be let adrift, to bob about as the winds and waves may choose, the ve-sels remaining as near to the buoy as possible. THE LIBRARY OF CONGRESS .- The Library of Congress was first established during the administration of Jefferson, at his suggestion, and by his exertions. We have already explained to our readers how the cable is coated with closely woven spiral wires, to prevent damage to the core in paying out; but, in consequence of the two halves having been made at different places-one at Birkenhead, by Messrs Elliott, a most egregious blunder has been committed. It will scarcely be credited, but it is nevertheless true, that the twist of the spiral wires of the Birkenhead half is in exactly the opposite direction to the twist of the wires in the balf made at Greenwich. Thus, when joined in the centre of the Atlantic, they will form a right and a left hand screw, and the tendency of each will be to assist the other to untwist, and expose the core. By attaching a solid weight to the centre joining it is hoped this difficulty and danger may be overcome, but none attempt to conceal that the mistake is much to be reed theirs, and that therefore the fault rests with the

200 ACRES LAND FOR SALE. YING on the South side of the N. & C. Railroad, 14 miles from Nashville, and three-quarters from La

ON FRIDAY, AUGUST 21ST., We will sell to the hig lest bidder, on the premises, about two hundred acres of land, including the homestead of the late Matthew Nelson, with all the improvements, consisting of a Frame Dweiling House, containing seven rooms, with all necessary out houses, such as Gin House, Cotton Press, &c. There is about 150 acres of cleared land, the balance well timbered, with a never-falling stream of water run-ning through the centre of the tract, besides some two or three good Springs. The soil is excellent, and is superior to any yet offered in point of fertility. Its proximity to Nashville by Bailroad, and the advantage of being close to Lavergne, where there is established Steam Saw and Grist Mills, tesides good Schools, Churches, &c., &c., which makes it altogether desirable. The tract will be divided, a plat of which will be exhibited on the day of sale. We would ask an examination of the property before the day of sale, as we are confident it is superior land, and affords advan-tages over any that has been offered to the public.
